

What Are Name Badges Online

Contributed by admin
Saturday, 21 October 2006

It seems like a simple enough question, "What are name badges?" Most people realize that name badges are simply tags that people wear to make it easy to identify them. The more important question is, "Why are name badges necessary?" Name badges are a great tool for both business and leisure, and make identifying people simple. How does the use of name badges benefit the people that use them? Actually, the use of name badges offers myriad benefits, beyond easy identification.

Name badges help people "break the ice" easier when they are in a large group, gathering or at work. The use of name badges allows people to feel more comfortable around new people. Sometimes some people are terrible at remembering names, and when people are wearing name badges it makes for an easier time communicating with others. People can set aside the anxiety or awkwardness they may feel about remembering people's names and they can just refer to the name badges that people are wearing. Alternatively, name badges are excellent in the business setting when employers want to make it easy for clients/consumers to identify their employees.

Name badges come in a variety of styles; some are simple, while others are detailed and laminated. Further, some name badges are self-adhesive; others can be worn around the neck, and still other name badges can be clipped or onto clothing. Business owners can even order name badges that possess the company logo; thereby giving the name badges a professional appearance.

Name Badges Online: Before you order name badges online, you'll want to consider how they are going to be used and what kind of technology will be implemented. For example, will the name badges be used to open a door or gate or will they be used as a way for employees to clock in to work? There are various technologies available for making these kinds of name badges.

There are smart cards integrated with name badges that can track employee absences and actions. Then, there are read only proximity cards that would allow an employee or vendor access to a door. Name badge technology can streamline certain activities at your business freeing up precious human resource time and resources.

Name badges and card readers can be ordered online through several different websites; however, with the many options that exist for this technology, you want to be sure you are familiar with the choices you have and what each technology can accomplish. For example, as technologies change, if you have only one kind of card reader, you'll have to replace it when you replace the badges or it may cause a conflict with certain vendors. By having a card reader that can read different technologies, different employees or departments can have different kinds of information stored on their name badges.

For example, an employee of a department that has an expense account available on their smart card integrated name badge would use different technology than the janitor who only needs access to a door.

Name badges can now be inserted into vending machines and computer stations or merely passed across a laser beam for verification. Think about your company's needs and examine the different technologies available and then you will be able to choose which technology is right for your business.